The Double-Sheet To-morrow. The unusual demand for advertising space in

In October, 1884, there were printed 3,342 advertisements: this year 4,514 were inserted for that month. showing an increase of 1.172. The District estimates afford some interesting reading. By examining the figures one may see what it is that costs in government. The expenses of the District for the year to come are put down at the goodly sum of $3,829,868.99. The largest single item is for interest on the debt, amounting to $1,213,947.97. After that, we pay most for our schools, the expenditures for that item being $535,098. Next to schools come the police, with an expenditure of $357,-500; then new improvements, $325,000; fire department, $115,590; lighting streets, $105,-

The valuation of the taxable real property of the District amounts to $95,054,301; a statement which may give one a lively idea of the wealth of some of the great money kings of the country. There are several men in the United States whose individual wealth is reported to exceed one hundred millions. Let, then, a person walk up and down the streets of this city and imagine all the land and buildings he sees owned by one man, and he may begin to understand what is meant by the wealth of a Van- CENT LESS THAN THE "GIFT" STORES.

A manuscript by the late Gen. McClellan, ontaining his personal recollections of the civil war, was accidentally destroyed some years ago, and it was said that the author was so discouraged by the misfortune that he refused to reproduce the work. But, fortunately, such was not the case. Gen. Mcclellan's notes and papers were saved, and out of them he had nearly re-written his book when death overcompletion and published. As a narrative of the great events in the earlier stages of the war it will be of great value, and it will be of the more use because it will treat the subject from a new standpoint. No doubt many of Mc Clellan's facts and opinions will give rise to disputes, but out of these controversies comes the truth of history.

The well-worn argument that it would be cheaper to keep the Indians at a fashionable hotel than to deal with them as we do now is revived by a simple-minded westerner, who was interviewed yesterday on his arrival in this strictly true. The only trouble lies in the fact that the United States has no right to save money in that way. In very many cases it would pay to confiscate a man's possessions and board property, but there are legal and moral difficulprivileges that are not theirs by right, and these | OF ANXIOUS AND ACCOMMODATING SALES cannot be taken away because the country

We have, by close attention, improved our standard of quality in Underwear each succeeding season, without increasing the price. We would not, under any circumstances, lower this standard of quality, merely to meet competition, as slight eruptions upon the surface of trade fall to affect any business built slowly and surely upon the solid basis of best quality and lowest price. A new and large invoice of Underwear enables us to offer our customers what we pronounce to be unquestionably the best values possibly obtainable in this or any city. Our large distributing facilities commands from the makers the best price possible at all times. We quote: 100 Doz. Ladies' Fine Muslia Chemise, with four clusters of three fine tucks, extra good cotton, worth 29a.
